Jason Long, Tina Norden and Maria Cheung named Dezeen Awards 2023 judges

Elisa Barkan | 5 hours ago

Architects Jason Long, Tina Norden and Maria Cheung join Kickstarter's Heather Swift Hunt, EDGE's Anja Köhler and Ellen MacArthur Foundation's Joe Iles as the final Dezeen Awards 2023 judges to be announced.

Dezeen Awards 2023, in partnership with Bentley Motors, is now closed for entries. The longlists will be published on Dezeen in September.

Now in its sixth year, the programme has become the ultimate accolade for architects and designers everywhere, with winners selected by a prestigious panel of international judges.

Read on to learn more about the final names to join this year's judging panel:

Architect Jason Long leads studio OMA's New York office

Long is a partner at Dutch architecture practice OMA, leading its New York office and diverse portfolio in the Americas.

Projects under Long's direction include the overhaul of a post office in Houston into a mixed-use venue for arts, French cultural institute Centre Pompidou's first North American outpost in Jersey City, the conversion of a bakery into a community arts hub in Detroit and a raised garden over Washington DC's Anacostia River.

The architect has also led residential projects such as a tiered residential structure with interlocking towers in Miami Beach and OMA's first high-rise towers in New York. In California, he oversaw the completion of The Avery, a glass condo high-rise in San Francisco. He is currently leading the design of 730 Stanyan, an affordable housing building in San Francisco.

Tina Norden is a partner at architecture firm Conran and Partners

Architect and interior designer Norden is a partner at practice Conran and Partners. She recently completed the refurbishment of Maximilian, a boutique hotel in Prague, and the interiors of the QO Amsterdam hotel.

Norden leads design teams in both the UK and Hong Kong and is currently working on two new Park Hyatt hotel projects in Jakarta and Changsha, having recently completed a third Park Hyatt in Auckland. She is also working on a five-star hotel in Mumbai, a long-stay hotel for Lanson Place in Melbourne and several residential and clubhouse projects in Hong Kong.

The interior designer has also collaborated on projects with restaurant group D&D London for over a decade, including the South Place Hotel in the City of London and the German Gymnasium in King's Cross.
