Designed by Squire & Partners and developed by burgeoning developer JTRE London, the £450mn Triptych Bankside glistens with a shimmering bronze façade that mimics the natural ebb and flow of the river Thames, with its three towers creating a new narrative on the skyline. Home to 169 exceptional residences complemented by new commercial, retail and cultural space, the development has bucked wider London trends and enjoyed exceptional success, recently surpassing £200m in residential sales.

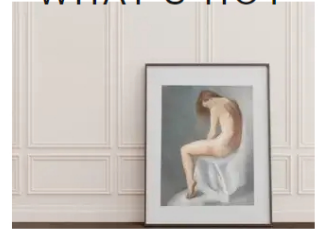

This two bedroom apartment is meticulously designed and light-filled, with a spacious balcony that offers views of landmarks including the Tate Modern. Inside, an unrivalled specification and craftsmanship can be found throughout, with carefully selected finishes, high end appliances, intelligent lighting, underfloor heating and full Climate Control completing the offering.

Beyond the finest new homes, buyers at this price point expect a certain level of amenity but JTRE London made a conscious decision to ensure what they included still represented relative value for money for residents. Nigel Fleming, Joint MD of JTRE London comments: "Careful thought went into the amenity choices at Triptych Bankside. While swimming pools and spas might grab buyers' attention, evidence suggests residents rarely end up using them, having their own external specialist's gym or health club memberships. This means we can keep service charges down, comparatively 40% to 50% lower, compared to the £7.60 at Triptych Bankside."
